Greet Sir Thomas, my 16.9 pound 4-year-old rescue! He's playing whack-a-mole with my feet (under the blanket). Why? Because that's HIS bed in his little cat brain. Thomas and his housemates will appear from time to time.

The Resource

Career cop Hot woman Deadly Secret

Jared was a career cop performing a routine house check until he knocked on Savannah's door. Rules be damned, after one look he let himself step inside, and shut the door.

Savannah was living a secret life, not quite a protected witness, more like a protected asset. When the handsome officer arrived on her doorstep, her instant attraction to him had her tossing the rules aside and inviting love in.

When she was forced to break cover during a robbery in a desperate attempt to save his life, she knew it would be a problem that could shatter what they had. A shocked Jared now knows that everything he thought he knew about her is a lie. Could he accept what she was?

Savannah had another problem. Within days, the media coverage of the robbery had led to old enemies resurfacing. To stay alive, she needs to sever ties and disappear. Again.

Could she walk away, leaving Jared behind? Would he risk it all and disappear with her?

The Resource is the seventh book in the Hot Cop series from Caliente Morgan. If you like a little mystery and a little action with your contemporary romance, then you'll love The Resource. The copy editor did. The Resource: Novella (approx. 25K words.)

What I've Been Doing

No RWA San Diego chapter meeting this month.

The California Dreaming Conference runs this month. I am not attending.

Cleaning up the ISBN spreadsheet and updating the book info. The first 10 books were re-released to Amazon. They are formatted for other services (B&N, iBooks, and KOBO eBooks sellers have been chosen) but the books are not re-listed at the moment. On my to-do list.

The aggregator company I had hired to do the distribution simply fell apart. I was experiencing 6-8 weeks delays due to constant technical problems, so I terminated them. Such is the life of an author these days!

I am also updating descriptions having finally confirmed that the services like Amazon add a line feed under every paragraph, producing lots of reading gaps. I thought so! Something that just got dropped when I was given directions. I am still sifting thru and fixing the spacing.

I updated the Amazon buy link spreadsheet (see the end of the Newsletter) – next step is to update the websites.

What I'm Reading

I ordered the Prime Suspect DVD series (Lynda La Plante) and I ordered the three books the author was allowed to write. Yep. They cut her off. I already read them because you simply could not put them down.

I am also re-reading the DCI Banks series. (Peter Robinson) They pulled the plug on the TV series after five seasons. I have watched those last three shows about five times. I have ALL his DCI Banks books (23 of them) and have read them once. I have watched the four series on DVD several times. The 5th season DVD not out yet.

I am a big fan of British TV series. And Australia. And Wales. And New Zealand. And Italy. And France. And Scandinavia. And... Let's not forget Montalbano. Italian. (MHz Mysteries running on PBS for a brief time got me hooked). I read Andrea Camilleri books as soon as they are translated into English. It would take several pages to list the series that I follow.

Current Projects

Captain's Bride is under Edit Review and should be released in April. This is the 5th book in the Regency Historical Romance Series. Another flower from my Christmas bulbs. Second-chance romance.

Night Hunter is out for copy edit. 19K words. Night Hunter is a quirky little vampire story. Haunt Me (already finished) is a Regency Gothic ghost short story. Both will be part of a newsletter signup promotion.

The POD (print) version of Badge Boys is almost complete. Just touching up the cover. Next will be making sure all the steps are checked off for submission to CreateSpace. The eBook is already released on Amazon.

Badge Boys, Watcha gonna do when she comes for you?*

Twin hot cops, one hot woman

Can they blend into a family in spite of:

Fierce jealousy, a shooting, a car crash, and a three year old?

When shots are fired, Elizabeth Ann Burnside, Annie, rescues a fallen officer. SDPD sergeants Ivan and Troy Hardwick arrive to take over. While Troy tends to the fallen officer, his identical twin Ivan tends to the wounded Annie. Within days, Ivan appoints himself her protector and becomes her lover.

But Troy wants her too. And while Annie considers the idea of bedding both them, they discover that Annie can do something no one else can do. She can tell them apart.

Two of them? Could she do this?

While she works to discover that yes, she wants them both, flashes of jealousy erupt between the twins and threaten to destroy everything.

When Annie disappears returning from a road trip, the two men must pull themselves together. Can they bury the competitive issues that fuel their jealousy to save the woman they both love?
